Notes

1. The tuition fee is stated after applying a bursary to the standard fee. If a bursary is not needed, the standard fee will be charged. The bursary is not available to students sponsored by the Church of England. Additional bursaries may be available in certain cases and requests should be made to the executive director. The tuition fee includes the charge for university validation.
2. The higher maintenance fee covers the provision of term-time board and lodging as well as general college amenities. A rebate is built into the fee in respect of meals not provided by the college, namely (broadly) weekend meals and four weekday evening meals.
3. The lower maintenance and community fee covers general college amenities and access to community provision:
 - i. week-day lunches and occasional other meals,
 - ii. 10 lunches per term for spouse,
 - iii. eligibility for college-managed houses or flats, where available, at rates generally below the market and in most cases exempt from Council tax, and
 - iv. access to the college day nursery at preferential rates.
4. Students on the dispersed learning (full-time non-residential) mode receive meals free of charge when attending required courses, subject to availability. Accommodation can be provided, where available, at standard rates.
5. Students following a ministerial formation programme for ordination or equivalent are subject to an additional fee.
6. Shared study rooms are available, if required, normally in term-time only.
7. Spouses of full-time students may undertake full-time courses at a fee equivalent to 50% of the net tuition fee. They pay other fees at the full rate.
8. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Non-payment of tuition fees may lead to termination of the programme.
9. All per annum fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years, made by reference to the RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).

Notes

1. Fees are charged annually for the duration of the programme and include a charge for university validation. The university charge has a small fixed annual component, which is included in each year's fee.
2. An additional charge is made for meals taken in college, except in the case of weekend meals where weekend attendance is a required part of the course. Residence in college is possible by arrangement through the accommodation office, in which case the standard fees for maintenance, board and lodging become payable. The day-time fee entitles part-time students to participate in chapel, the Spirituality course, and the non-assessed programme of the School of Leadership. It does not include membership of a tutor group.
3. Where a student taking a taster module proceeds to the full programme the standard fee applies, against which the fee for the taster module will be offset.
4. Individual modules from other courses may be available for audit by agreement. The quoted charge is based on a module bearing 10 credits. See also note 5.
5. Spouses of full-time students may undertake part-time courses at a fee equivalent to 50% of the tuition fee. They may audit individual modules free of charge where places are available.
6. All per annum fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years, made by reference to the RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).
7. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Fees for individual modules are payable in advance of the module. Non-payment of tuition fees may lead to termination of the programme.

Notes

1. The tuition fee includes the university validation fee. Full-time international students are normally required to participate in the full community life of the college and pay the relevant maintenance and community fee (see under full-time undergraduate courses). This gives them access to membership of tutor groups.
2. Students who enrol on the PGDip with a view to proceeding to the MA are charged from the outset as MA candidates, with retrospective adjustment if not upgraded.
3. Part-time postgraduate courses are normally only available to UK citizens or others who do not require full-time study status for visa purposes as well as to those studying at a distance whilst based overseas.
4. Where a student taking a taster module proceeds to the full programme the standard fee applies, against which the fee for the taster module will be offset.
5. Where a student extends their study period to complete their dissertation, an additional fee is charged to cover supervision and administrative costs. A lower extension fee is payable where extra time is needed for writing up but no further supervision is required.
6. Any accommodation or meals required in college are charged at standard rates. Full-time students may benefit from college-managed accommodation and study rooms at the same rates as for undergraduate students (see maintenance fees, page 2).
7. Spouses of full-time students may undertake full or part-time postgraduate taught courses at a 50% discount on the tuition fee.
8. All per annum fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years made by reference to the RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).
8. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Non-payment of fees may lead to termination of the programme.

2. Research fees are charged according to the length of time the student remains under supervision, subject to a minimum fee equivalent to the normal minimum period of study of 36 months for full-time students and 72 months for part-time students. Where an extension to supervised study beyond the normal period of study is agreed, full tuition fees remain payable during this period. If an extension is agreed where supervision is not required, a reduced termly extension fee becomes payable.
3. Part-time postgraduate courses are normally only available to UK citizens or others who do not require full-time study status for visa purposes as well as to those studying at a distance whilst based overseas.
4. Accommodation and meals required in college are charged at standard rates. Full-time students may benefit from college-managed accommodation and study rooms at the same rates as for undergraduate students (see maintenance fees, page 2).
5. The cost of printing dissertations will incur an extra charge.
6. Student spouses studying for postgraduate research degrees are not eligible for a reduction in fees.
7. All annual fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years, made by reference to the University of Aberdeen fee increases.
8. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Non-payment of fees may lead to termination of the programme.

SABBATICALS

Tuition and Study

Auditing lectures whilst on sabbatical is free of charge. However, where a person wishes to register for a particular course and be assessed normal course fees apply. Formal instruction or supervision given by a college tutor is normally charged at £60 per hourly session (usual maximum of two sessions per week).

Chapel and Library

Sabbatical guests are welcome to take part in college worship and to use the library for reading (though not borrowing) at no extra charge.

Accommodation

Accommodation is normally available in college guest rooms. Please refer to the Operations Manager for current rates. During term-time, weekday lunches and one evening meal (on a Tuesday) are provided in the college dining room (see Accommodation & Meals). For all other meals a kitchen is available for use by guests for self-catering purposes.

During term-time all lunches and one evening meal are provided. During half-terms lunch is provided. Vacations are self-catering, though lunches may be booked when available at the standard guest lunch rate.
2. The vacation supplement is payable by those wishing to be resident over the Easter and Summer vacations. The quoted fee represents a one-third discount on the standard charge for the periods covered. The standard daily rate applies for shorter periods of vacation residence.
3. Discounts may be available on room charges for longer term stays.
4. Full-time resident students can reserve the designated guest accommodation for their guests free of charge. Where they use accommodation normally available to conference guests, the part-time resident student charge applies.
