Notes

1. The tuition fee includes the charge for university validation. It is stated after applying a bursary to the standard fee. If a bursary is not needed, the standard fee will be charged. Additional bursaries may be available in certain cases and requests should be made to the Executive Director. Bursaries are not available to students sponsored by the Church of England. A few full scholarships are available each year under the college's Relay Scholarship scheme for those connected with the South-West. If interested, please enquire of the Admissions Officer who can give you details of the criteria by which the scholarships are awarded.
2. The higher maintenance fee covers the provision of term-time board and lodging as well as general college amenities. A rebate is built into the fee in respect of meals not provided by the college, namely (broadly) weekend meals and four weekday evening meals.
3. The lower maintenance and community fee covers general college amenities and access to community provision:
 - i. week-day lunches and occasional other meals,
 - ii. 10 lunches per term for spouse,
 - iii. eligibility for college-managed houses or flats, where available, at rates generally below the market and in most cases exempt from Council tax, and
 - iv. access to the college day nursery at preferential rates.
4. Students on the dispersed learning (full-time non-residential) mode receive meals free of charge when attending required courses, subject to availability. Accommodation can be provided, where available, at standard rates.
5. Provision of a programme of ministerial formation for ordination or equivalent is subject to an additional fee.
6. Shared study rooms are available, if required, normally in term-time only.
7. International students requiring a visa under the college's sponsorship pay a deposit on acceptance of application of £1,000 to be offset against the first term's instalment of fees. If a student withdraws their application 50% of the deposit will be returned unless the sponsorship process has been formally started in which case the fee is non-refundable.
8. Spouses of full-time students may undertake full-time courses at a fee equivalent to 50% of the net tuition fee. They pay other fees at the full rate.
9. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Non-payment of tuition fees may lead to termination of the programme.
10. All per annum fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years, made by reference to the RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).

Notes

1. Fees are charged annually for the duration of the programme and include a charge for university validation. The university charge has a small fixed annual component, which is included in each year's fee.
2. An additional charge is made for meals taken in college, except in the case of weekend meals where weekend attendance is a required part of the course. Residence in college is possible by arrangement through the accommodation office, in which case the standard fees for maintenance, board and lodging become payable. The day-time fee entitles part-time students to participate in chapel, the Spirituality course, and the non-assessed programme of the School of Leadership. It does not include membership of a tutor group.
3. Where a student taking a taster module proceeds to the full programme the standard fee applies, against which the fee for the taster module will be offset.
4. Individual modules from other courses may be available for audit by agreement. The quoted charge is based on a module bearing 10 credits. See also note 5.
5. Spouses of full-time students may undertake part-time courses at a fee equivalent to 50% of the tuition fee. They may audit individual modules free of charge where places are available.
6. All per annum fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years, made by reference to the RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).
7. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Fees for individual modules are payable in advance of the module. Non-payment of tuition fees may lead to termination of the programme.

Notes

1. The tuition fee includes the university validation fee. Full-time international students are normally required to participate in the full community life of the college and pay the relevant maintenance and community fee (see under full-time undergraduate courses). This gives them access to membership of tutor groups.
2. International students requiring a visa under the college's sponsorship pay a deposit on acceptance of application of £1,000 to be offset against the first term's instalment of fees. If a student withdraws their application 50% of the deposit will be returned unless the sponsorship process has been formally started in which case the fee is non-refundable.
3. Students who enrol on the PGDip with a view to proceeding to the MA are charged from the outset as MA candidates, with retrospective adjustment if not upgraded.
4. Part-time postgraduate courses are normally only available to UK citizens or others who do not require full-time study status for visa purposes as well as to those studying at a distance whilst based overseas.
5. Where a student taking a taster module proceeds to the full programme the standard fee applies, against which the fee for the taster module will be offset.
6. Where a student extends their study period to complete their dissertation, an additional fee is charged to cover supervision and administrative costs. A reduced extension fee is payable where extra time is needed for writing up, but no further supervision is required.
7. Any accommodation or meals required in college are charged at standard rates. Full-time students may benefit from college-managed accommodation and study rooms at the same rates as for undergraduate students (see maintenance fees, page 2).
8. Spouses of full-time students may undertake full or part-time postgraduate taught courses at a 50% discount on the tuition fee.
9. All per annum fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years made by reference to the RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).
10. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Non-payment of fees may lead to termination of the programme.

2. The college fee includes validation and administrative fees paid to the University of Aberdeen.
3. International students requiring a visa under the college's sponsorship pay a deposit on acceptance of application of £1,000 to be offset against the first term's instalment of fees. If a student withdraws their application 50% of the deposit will be returned unless the sponsorship process has been formally started in which case the fee is non-refundable.
4. Research fees are charged according to the length of time the student remains under supervision, subject to a minimum fee equivalent to the normal minimum period of study of 36 months for full-time students and 72 months for part-time students. Where an extension to supervised study beyond the normal period of study is agreed, for the agreed length of the extension period full fees will continue to be charged if full supervision is required or half fees will be charged if part supervision is required. If an extension is agreed where supervision is not required, a fixed administrative fee of £150 will be charged. Following submission, no fees are payable except in the case of a re-submission of the thesis for which a fee of £150 becomes payable.
5. Part-time postgraduate courses are normally only available to UK citizens or others who do not require full-time study status for visa purposes as well as to those studying at a distance whilst based overseas.
6. Accommodation and meals required in college are charged at standard rates. Full-time students may benefit from college-managed accommodation and study rooms at the same rates as for undergraduate students (see maintenance fees, page 2).
7. The cost of printing dissertations will incur an extra charge.
8. Student spouses studying for postgraduate research degrees are not eligible for a reduction in fees.
9. All annual fees are subject to an inflationary increase in subsequent years, made by reference to the University of Aberdeen fee increases, and to the UK RPI and CPI (aiming at higher of RPI and CPI +/- 1%).
10. Fees are payable in three instalments on the first day of the college term in September, January, and April. Each term's fee is not refundable in the case of early withdrawal from the course. Non-payment of fees may lead to termination of the programme. If a student is registered to start in the second or third term, standard fees will commence from the start of that term and finish on the anniversary in the corresponding year at the end of their programme.
